Who are we?

SEStran

The South East of Scotland Transport Partnership (SEStran) is the statutory Regional Transport Partnership for the South East of Scotland. SEStran encompasses eight local authorities: City of Edinburgh, Clackmannanshire, East Lothian, Falkirk, Fife, Midlothian, Scottish Borders and West Lothian.

AECOM

AECOM is a global network of engineering consultants working with clients, communities and colleagues to develop and implement innovative solutions to the world's most complex challenges. AECOM has been employed by SEStran to develop designs for walking and cycling improvements in across south east Scotland.

In More Detail

The overarching aim of the study is to inform the delivery of enhanced facilities to promote the greater use of active travel modes, namely walking and cycling, for local journeys. Another objective is improved integration and access to other sustainable modes, such as bus and rail services for longer journeys.

What's Next

SEStran in partnership with Fife Council and Sustrans will review the feedback provided by you, taking on board many of the excellent suggestions we are sure you will have on the scheme proposal.

These will then be reported to committee with suggestions to take an agreed scheme forward to a detailed design level where we can approach funding partners.
